new website makes it easier for industry workers:

The Authority has spent the past 7 months consulting business users and engaging the services of CRE8IVE a Canberra based digital agency, who have redesigned the Authority's website.

CRE8IVE are about creative and engaging digital platforms that facilitate business protocols to the benefit of all business users. Not only does the website provide up to date information about awareness of the Authority, its legislation, how the levy funds are administered including the entry level incentives available to employers in skills shortage trades, it also provides an automated application process, so the user can follow the steps to apply for training rebates in an easy, simple and efficient manner.

This new application process will reduce administration for the applicants and increase efficiency in response times.

The new user friendly site enables workers to access key information whilst on-site, as well as being able to complete and submit applications on-line.

Major improvements include:

- Electronic application forms
- Automated notification
- Useable on mobile devices
